AIA LAS VEGAS PRESIDENT'S MESSAGE

R. Brandon Sprague, AIA

Mentoring

A typical story of generosity in our valley...

It was in the spring of 1983... I was a junior at Chaparral High School. We had a visitor talk to us about what an architect is and does and the process of how to become one as well...

I have been fortunate in life to have always known what I wanted to be, an architect. So for me, meeting an architect for the first time was a career validation and a life affecting occurrence.

It wasn't so much what he said during that fifty minutes, even though I embraced every word. It was who he was; how he carried himself, the sense of confidence, sacrificing his valuable time to spend with us... Those are the moments that put a jog in the path of your life experiences.

After his presentation, I raced down the corridor to talk with him. He answered my questions (more like nervous babble) without hesitation and with great patience, making me feel very comfortable. He explained to me what steps I needed to take in applying to UNLV and about entering into an accredited school.

Thank You Ray Lucchesi...

....and Thank You to all those who have volunteered in our schools or who will in the future...

With deepest gratitude and respect,
R. Brandon Sprague, AIA

WELCOME NEW MEMBERS

We are pleased to welcome these new members to AIA Las Vegas:

BRIEFS:

Congratulations to Kevin Jeffers, AIA (Reno) and his wife Karen on the birth of their son, Robert O'Neil Jeffers, born on April 11th, 2002.

Curt Carlson, AIA has returned from his extended European adventures.... and has been named Director of Design for Swisher & Hall, AIA Ltd. Congratulations Curt....and welcome home.

Eric Christensen, AIA has established his new design consulting firm, Architectural Solution, specializing in schematic design. His clients include other architects as well as the general public.

Nadel Architects has been honored in two categories in the NAIOP Spotlight Awards. A 2002 Merit Award for Interiors was presented to their Interiors division and the United Brotherhood of Carpenters and Joiners Training Facility received the 2002 Honor Award in the Built-To-Suit Large category. They also received the "Special Publications Commendation Award" from CSI National for the Box City Instructor's Guide.

AIA NEVADA PRESIDENT'S MESSAGE

Mark Johnson, AIA

In the interest of continued statewide communications, I am using this space as a chance to update the AIA

Las Vegas members on the activities of the Northern Nevada Chapter.

AIANN is in the process of planning our 2002 AIANN/CSI Product Exposition, which will also feature the winners from our 12th Annual Washoe County High School Drafting Competition, an Architect's Luncheon Program, and the 2002-2003 recipients of our Graham Erskine Scholarship Awards. We have also started the planning for the Dennis Askew Memorial Golf Tournament to be held later this summer. The planning for the 2002 Statewide Excellence in Design and AIA Nevada Service Awards program is also in full swing.

We are very proud to have just purchased $512.40 worth of Architecture Books to form the basis for the newly created Truckee Meadows Community College (TMCC) AIAS Reference Library. TMCC offers a two year associates degree in architecture, and many graduates of the program move on to further education at the UNLV School of architecture.

Our chapter members have been involved in an exchange program with a Russian Architect through a venture with the University of Nevada, Reno. Three Northern Nevada firms have been working with Elena Grigorieva, Architect: Architects +, Ganthner, Melby, LLC and Cathexes. Ms. Grigorieva is the Chairman of the Board of the Irkutsk Organization of the Union of Architects of Russia and the Councillor of the Russian Academy of Architecture and Civil Engineering Sciences. On Wednesday, Terry Melby brought her in for a tour of the Northern Nevada Chapter Office and discussed ways in which our groups can become "friends". It was both enlightening and entertaining and we look forward to exchanging ideas with our new Russian friends.

Finally, congratulations to our executive director "Nana Jeffers" on the birth of her grandson, Robert O'Neil Jeffers, born on April 11, 2002.

MAY MEETING

"TOP TEN WAYS TO SCREW UP A CONSTRUCTION PROJECT"

Our May meeting will be one of the most interesting and informative of the year. "The Top Ten Ways to Screw Up a Construction Project" was the best-attended panel ever presented at the American Institute of Architects' Annual National Convention. It is a lively and informative look at where architects and the entire owners' team can go wrong in construction, and how to avoid those problems. Based on real-life examples, the program includes graphics, documents, and photographs to illustrate the presenters' perspectives.

The meeting is scheduled for Thursday, May 23rd at the Monte Carlo Hotel, with reception at 6:00PM in the "Brewery Loft" and the dinner at 7:00PM in the 2nd Floor Ballroom just across the hallway. The presentation will begin at 8:00PM.

"The Top Ten Ways...." will be presented by Mark Kelley and Brian Torone, AIA. Mark is a partner with the law firm of Miller, Brown & Dannis in San Francisco. He specializes in resolving contract and claim issues on public works projects such as schools, municipal buildings and public housing. He has extensive experience with contract formation, and construction issues, including giving training in construction dispute avoidance and resolution.

Brian Torone, AIA is the founder and principal of Torone Consulting in Oakland, California. He has developed and analyzed claims on projects ranging from a small community center to high-rise office buildings, semiconductor plants and multi-billion dollar power plants. He has participated in numerous mediations, arbitrations, and trials as an expert on cost, schedule delays, management issues and technical issues.

Be sure to RSVP for this meeting. There is a $35.00 charge for nonmembers and guests.

This meeting is being sponsored by the Western States Roofing Contractors' Association.

JUNE MEETING

PROJECT TOUR - FASHION SHOW MALL

What is happening at the Mall? Big things. Join us for our June membership meeting and take a tour of the new anchors of the Fashion Show Mall being developed by The Rouse Company. Chuck Coleman, AIA, Project Director, has arranged for our members to tour the new expansions and get the inside information on all details of the project. We'll meet at the mall at 6:00PM, enjoy some light refreshments, and break into smaller groups for the tours. Mark your calendar for Wednesday, June 12th, 6PM, and RSVP to 895-0936.

The expanded Fashion Show is the latest in a series of projects for The Rouse Company of Columbia, Maryland.

"Fashion Show's dynamic mix of retailers and design will make it a top destination on the Strip as well as an industry leader throughout the country," said Rita K. Brandin, vice president and development director for The Rouse Company. "From luxury apparel to urban trends, Fashion Show will have the most powerful fashion anchor lineup in the world."

The West Expansion, Phase 1, encompasses 172,242 square feet of retail space and includes the expansion of existing anchors Neiman Marcus, Macy's and Robinsons-May; new stores for existing anchors Saks Fifth Avenue and Dillard's. The West Expansion, which will celebrate its grand opening on November 1, 2002, also includes the long-anticipated introduction of Nordstrom and Bloomingdale's Home to Southern Nevada and the debut of the Great Hall, which will be capable of staging events such as product introductions and fashion shows via an elevated runway.

The Las Vegas Boulevard Expansion, Phase II, will add 104,527 square feet of retail space and includes the introduction of Lord & Taylor to Southern Nevada and the much-anticipated debut of Fashion Shows' signature element -- The Cloud, a 500-foot long canopy providing visual entertainment suspended above a 72,000 square foot plaza along the Las Vegas Strip. Phase II will also include the debut of the new 11,288 square foot Food Court and is scheduled to open in October 2003.

The overall redevelopment program will double Fashion Show's size to more than 1.9 million square feet. Fashion Show is currently the largest retail destination on Las Vegas Boulevard and attracts more than 10 million visitors annually.

Join us on Wednesday, June 12th for the inside look at this exceptional project. RSVP to 895-0936.

This meeting is being sponsored by Nevada Sales Agency.

United Brotherhood of Carpenters and Joiners Las Vegas, Nevada

Nadel Architects designed this 176,000 s.f. international training facility containing classrooms, a four-story dormitory, recreational, dining, multi-purpose facilities and executive offices. It is constructed of three different building types; a tilt up panel construction highlighted with a steel framed portion, CMU, and steel frame construction. A mezzanine in the Training Facility was constructed to highlight office space for the General President, Executive Director and the International Executives.

Used as a teaching facility for their Superintendent Career Training Program. The United Brotherhood of Carpenters consulted Auburn University on designing a program that integrates both the technical aspects of construction job site management and the personal/career development needs of the individual trainee. Technical and managerial issues, based on plan reading and case studies utilizing the construction and documents of the International Training Center, are the foundation for comprehensive understanding of the Superintendent's roles and responsibilities. Nadel Architects and their consultants have also agreed to be part of the training program.

MENTORING

Mentoring is and always has been the gateway into the profession of architecture. The experience is gathered, shared and passed on and this keeps the profession alive.

In our community there are a great number of opportunities to share your knowledge and experience through a mentoring program.

Kathleen Frosini is the Director of Career & Technical Education at the Clark County School District and has established a program called M.A.T.E.S. - Mentoring Aspiring Technical Education Students. Through this program high school students are matched with a local professional to develop a relationship of mutual learning, trust and advice.

The mentor helps the student focus, and better understand his/her goals and capabilities. The mentor also reviews the students work experience and guides them in choosing the next step. A mentor can also arrange and supervise meaningful work experiences for students. He or she provides encouragement, acts as coach, counsel and support. He or she is a model and fosters a positive attitude in the student. He or she listens, tutors, guides and boosts the student's self-esteem and confidence. He or she is a bridge between school-based learning and work-based learning. If you are interested in participating in the M.A.T.E.S. program contact Kathleen Frosini at 702-799-8406.

At the UNLV School of Architecture an elective class is being offered to students who are interested in mentoring. Alumni needing IDP credit hours in community service have also been encouraged to participate. The purpose of this program is to bring a "broader sense of design" into the higher CADD classes. Five "trail" schools have been implemented this year. There are five students registered in the class at UNLV and each is paired with a school and an alumni/intern. The current focus has been on the AIA High School Design Competition. If you are interested in participating in this mentoring program contact Richard Beckman - richardbeckman@hotmail.com Jeff Wagner - SINCTYPLAYA@aol.com - Kasey Baker - KaseyB@HCAarchitects.com

Our own AIA High School Design Awards Program provides an excellent means for mentoring. This program has operated continuously for over 10 years since we inherited it from the Southern Nevada Homebuilders Association. At the beginning of each school year, a design challenge is issued to the drafting and art classes at Clark County High Schools. Throughout the year AIA Advisors work with the classes and students on their projects. Advisors are always needed to assist with this program. In the spring the projects are juried and recipients are selected for the AIA High School Design Awards program. All students who participate receive recognition and those whose projects are selected as exceptional receive U.S. Savings Bond awards. If interested, contact Eric Christensen, AIA at 360-4935.

ARCHITECTURE LAS VEGAS

The Editorial Committee for the "official publication of the AIA Las Vegas Chapter" has been reestablished and is currently working on the issue to be published in October. Members of the committee are Robert Fielden, FAIA, Harry Campbell, AIA, Michael Alcorn, AIA, Steven Van Gorp, Assoc. AIA, Brandon Sprague, AIA, David Frommer, AIA and Randy Lavigne.

Phil Hagen, editor of Las Vegas Life Magazine will continue as editor of Architecture Las Vegas and Vince Durocher, will head up the marketing effort.

The October issue will focus on Community Concerns and Residential Design in Las Vegas. Suggestions for articles under this topic banner are welcomed, as well as information on your new and developing projects. Please contact Randy Lavigne or any member of the committee with this information.

Like the first two issues, Architecture Las Vegas will be packaged with the October issue of Las Vegas Life Magazine and send directly to Las Vegas Life subscribers. On the newsstands and in bookstores, however, it will be a stand-alone magazine with national distribution.

Demographic figures from Las Vegas Life indicate that our magazine will reach both males (48%) and females (52%), mostly married (60%), college educated (73%) and generally in professional or managerial position (73%). They are homeowners (69%) with an average income of over $75,000.00 (67%). This certainly sounds like the appropriate target audience for architectural information and services.

For those interested in advertising space, you might like to know that a portion of your advertising space cost (depending on the size of the ad space) is refunded to the Chapter to help support the AIA Scholarship Endowment Fund.

If you have questions regarding rates and availability, please contact Vince Durocher at 702-990-2450.

COMMITTEE FOR LIVABLE COMMUNITIES (CLC)

Chuck Kubat, AIA -Co-chair

The committee for livable communities met on April 16th for a presentation of the North Las Vegas 7,500 acre Master Plan by Mike Majewski and Misty Haehn of North Las Vegas. The difference in perspective between the public sector and private sector in the negotiation for the initial 1,900 acres, plus the hurdles in making this happen with the BLM were interesting parts of the story. The plan itself and good questions from the audience of members and students created a lively discussion. The next presentation is tentatively set for June 18th at 6:00 PM and will be focused on the latest urban design initiative of Henderson. Please plan to attend.

In addition, copies of the "Growth & Schools" presentation made by Dale Scheideman, AIA on March 26th are available through the AIA office.

ENTER THE "DESI" AWARDS

The "Desi" Awards is a newly established program instituted by Finishing Touches and Homes Magazines to recognize excellence and innovation in residential design, planning, construction and marketing in the Las Vegas Market.

The awards program is also sponsored by Las Vegas Chapter of the American Institute of Architects (AIA Las Vegas) and the American Society of Interior Designers (ASID).

Architects, Interior Designers, Residential Designers and Homeowners are invited to enter their projects. Grand prize winners will be featured in the March 2003 issue of Finishing Touches Magazine, and winning entries will receive awards plaques and gift certificates worth $250.00.

The Awards are divided into two areas of Design Recognition - "Best Architectural Design" and "Best Interior Design" with various categories under each heading.

"Best Architectural Design categories include "Best Custom Home Design", "Best Development Home Design", "Most Unusual Home Design", Best Sustainable Design" (innovative measures and best use of environmental/energy efficiency) "Best Landscaping & Garden Design", "Best Pool & Spa Design", "Best Patio Design", "Best Courtyard Design" and "Best Architectural Themed Design". In the Best Interior Design portion, the categories include "Best Living Room", "Best Dining Room", "Best Kitchen", Best Master Bedroom", "Best Master Bathroom", "Best Home Office", "Most Imaginative Interior Design - Any Room", "Most Creative Powder/Bath", "Most Creative Children's Room", "Best Overall Interior Design - Any Room".

Each member of AIA Las Vegas and ASID will receive a subscription to Finishing Touches Magazine and an invitation to enter their projects. For further details on entering your projects contact Nichole DeMauro at 702-387-5292.

AIA LV SCHOLARSHIP COMMITTEE

Mike Andersen, AIA - Chair

The AIA Scholarship Committee met on April 23rd to review the submittals and projects of this year's applicants. The jury committee included Mike Andersen, AIA, Chair, Brandon Sprague, AIA, David Frommer, AIA, Todd Vedelago, AIA, Dwayne Eshenbaugh, AIA and Bill Snyder, FAIA.

Scholarship awards will be presented to the following UNLV 3rd Year Architecture Students.

Toini Harris $1,500.00 AIA Scholarship

Kip Katich - $1,500.00 AIA Scholarship

Congratulations to each recipient.

INTERN IDEAS COMPETITION

AIA Las Vegas would like to thank those who entered this year's intern ideas competition. This year, the jury exercised their right to refrain from awarding any of the projects the $1,500 prize, primarily due to the content of the entries.

When conceived three years ago, the ideas competition was meant to draw entries from post-graduate/pre-licensed architectural interns. This has not occurred and therefore the eligibility requirements have been expanded every year to include a broader group with the hope that we would get more entries thus, a stronger competition. It was noted in our last board meeting that the entries from all three competitions have been from the student population (kudos to the students).

With that being said, our board is currently reevaluating the Intern Design Competition program. Our goal is to engage the post-graduate/pre-licensed architectural interns in the chapter. This has proven to be a difficult task. This group does exist in our chapter and we all know who they are. But how do we reach them?

It all boils down to the Chapter's desire to award a post-graduate/pre-licensed architectural intern a $1,500 scholarship. If I do the math, that is enough to cover the cost of the ARE plus study materials! We would like to see the talent from this group. How can we entice you to share it with us? One promising idea is to have a one-day design charette in lieu of the current competition. From design to jury, the whole event would be done in one day. Does this sound more enticing? If so, please let us know. If not, what are your ideas?

Please send your comments and/or ideas to Dwayne R. Eshenbaugh, AIA at dwayneo@lgainc.com. or give me a call at 263-7111.

CONNECTIONS

by Valerie Bugni, Allied Member of AIA, and
Dr. Ronald Smith, Chair UNLV Department of Sociology

In the eighteenth century, revolutions in Europe and North America completely changed the traditional social order of the times and ushered in new perspectives on human social life.

As a result of the wide range of quantitative and qualitative research methods used by sociologists, the field now contains a large body of findings relevant to architecture. Some of those topics include organizational development, organizational effectiveness, job satisfaction, how people express emotions at work, how space design influences organizational well-being, how architectural environments are intimately intertwined with the cultural imperatives of the society, and how buildings impact human behavior. Because sociology addresses some of the most challenging issues of our time, it is an expanding field whose relationship with the discipline of architecture is becoming more apparent.

The interaction between the sociologist and architect dates back to the birth of sociology, but it was the Civil Rights Movement of the 1960's that triggered the birth of social design. According to Robert Sommer (professor at the University of California - Davis) the social design movement arose to correct the misalignments between people and their built environments, especially in prison, hospital and governmental settings. Dr. Sommer describes social design as the process of creating physical environments that meet the social needs of the occupants. During the 1960s and 1970s, architects invited social scientists into the design process to help them better understand the relationship between the building and human behavior. Sommer and others assisted architects from the pre-design phase through post occupancy in six major areas: human use of space, awareness and environmental cognition, environmental preferences, user needs analysis, participatory design, and post occupancy evaluation. Sociologists assisted architects by collecting data through surveying, interviewing, and participant observation to identify the current and future space and social needs of the future occupants of a building.

Specifically, how might today's sociologist assist the architect? Sociologists offer a unique perspective through which they view the world. This perspective is one that sees individual problems as part of a larger historical or macro context. The sociological mind is able to move quickly from micro to macro modes of thinking, similar to the problem-solving mind of the architect. Therefore, the sociologist is well suited to assist the architect in the following areas:

Predesign and Programming Phase: Assistance could include—

- Baseline research (problem definition, data collection, data analysis, and data interpretation)
- Neighborhood needs assessment studies and social trend analysis
- Building and organizational typology research
- Human factors analysis (group demographics, roles and relationships, and member values, beliefs, customs, perceptions)
- Organization-based analysis (organizational culture, social structure, human relations, decision-making, conflict, operational processes, and strategic planning)

Design Phases: Assistance might focus on the social impact of the proposed design concept. Sociologists could observe and analyze the project team and the group dynamic, and facilitate design team and user interactions.

Construction Phase: Sociologists could observe the architect-contractor relationship giving feedback and identifying the most effective interaction mechanisms

Post-Construction Phase: Assistance could be given to post-occupancy evaluations in order to determine if the designed environments support the needs of the various stakeholders (for example, workers, customers, managers, owners, and the public).

In conclusion, at a time when our nation's attention is centered on the role of buildings in our lives – and the devastation caused by their unexpected destruction – we are fortunate to be part of a community in which we are encouraged to grapple with the meaning of architecture in a larger sociological context. What is the purpose of architecture, beyond providing spaces in which people live and conduct their business? What do the buildings we construct say about us as a community and as a society? What obligation, if any, do design professionals have to build structures that provide a meaningful environment for our lives and “places” where organizational life can thrive? It would seem professionally fruitful, if not obligatory, for both sociologists and architects to accelerate their sharing of perspectives and to continue to working jointly toward the goal of connecting people to our designed environments. ## 9TH ANNUAL AIA SPRING PUTTING TOURNAMENT WINNERS

AIA's golf season got off to a great start on April 19th with our 9th Annual Spring Putting Tournament. The sold-out event was great fun for all who attended.

First Place Winners were the Carson Taylor Harvey (formerly Carson Construction) team of Roger Morones, Peter Harvey, Larry Johnson, Brian Toscani and John Legarza

Second Place Winners were the JMA Architecture Studios team of Darryll Brandwine, Rudy Hernandez, Juan Acuna, Toni Messiana, Robert Messiana and John Torpey.

Third Place Winners were the Klai::Juba Architects team of John DeVries, Steve Peck, Bart Remark, Craig Clark and Keith Swenson.

Sixteen people actually shot hole-in-one's though not on the designated hole. So all their names went into the pool and one lucky name was drawn to receive the Sony DVD Player....Patti Barbore, Sales Territory Manager for InPro Corporation took home the prize.

Since no one shot a hole-in-one on the designated 13th hold, the big prize (a 25" Color TV) was given away via the luck-of-the-draw...and it went home with Alan Greene of KGA Architecture.

MAKE AN IMPRESSION ART PARTNERSHIPS: The International House of Blues Foundation Invites You to Join

The Make an Impression Art Partnerships works to build and maintain a network of friends providing funding, art supplies and in-kind resources for art programs. IHOFB will offer these resources to schools and community centers requesting support for structured art programs and projects.

Anyone can contribute. Everyone has in their home unused materials such as buttons, old costume jewelry, odd wrapping paper, assorted and colorful cloth which can be restored in a newly created child's artwork. Many businesses discard materials that sparkle, shine and can be cut into small pieces to be reincarnated. Donations of these art supplies are given to Clark County Schools, community centers or shelters upon request. Architecture firms, Interior Designers and individuals are encouraged to donate their "junk" and left over materials and become a part of the partnership. To donate call IHOFB at 632-7695. ## MAY MEMBERSHIP MEETING

"Top Ten Ways to Screw Up A Construction Project"

Presented by

Mark Kelley & Brian Torone, AIA

This presentation was the best-attended panel ever presented at the American Institute of Architects Annual National Convention. It is a lively and informative look at where architects and the entire owners' team can go wrong in construction, and how to avoid those problems. Based on real-life examples, the program includes graphics, documents and photographs to illustrate the presenter's perspectives.

Mark Kelley is a partner with the law firm of Miller, Brown & Dannis in San Francisco. He specializes in resolving contract and claim issues on public works projects such as schools, municipal buildings and public housing. Brian Torone, AIA is the founder and principal of Torone Consulting in Oakland, California. He has developed and analyzed claims on projects ranging from a small community center to high-rise office buildings, semiconductor plants and multi-billion dollar power plants. He has participated in numerous mediations, arbitrations and trials as an expert on cost, schedule delays, management issues and technical issues.

COMMUNITY COLLEGE OF SOUTHERN NEVADA presents... CONTINUING EDUCATION MARKETING PROGRAM

Writing Your Company's Vision Statement

Have you thought about where you want your company to be in five, ten or twenty years? Before you can successfully market your product or service, you should have a clearly defined company vision. Your vision will serve as your company's compass and your marketing activities will support your vision and strategic direction. This class provides hands-on activities, which explain the visioning process and gives you the opportunity to begin writing your company's vision statement.

Instructor: Valerie Bugni, Delve Consulting Group, Inc.
Date: June 10, 2002
Time: 6:00 p.m. - 9:00 p.m.
Location: Western High School HTC 117
Cost: $45
Register: Phone: 702-651-5790
Touch-Tone: 702-643-7026

Marketing Activities and Strategic Business Planning: Seeing the Big Picture

Imagine if you could see your company from a helicopter view. What would you see? You would see how your company's various departments interact with one another. You would see how changes in the environment such as consumer spending habits and shifts in the economy could affect your company's survival and you would see how your marketing program affects your company's growth.

This course will introduce you to the open systems concept, which will help you to see a macro view of your company. Hands-on activities will help you to understand the interdependencies among the various internal and external components of your business. You will learn to think a new way - a way that will help you see the BIG picture!

Instructor: Valerie Bugni, Delve Consulting Group, Inc.
Date: Four Thursdays - June 13 - July 11 (No Class July 4)
Time: 6:00 p.m. - 7:30 p.m.
Location: Western High School HTC 112
Cost: $62
Register: Phone: 702-651-5790
Touch-Tone: 702-643-7026

Other courses in the series include: CCSN Marketing Program for Small Businesses, Corporate Marketing for Businesses Large and Small, Domestic and International Marketing: How American Companies Can Realize Big Profits, Advertising Basics, Marketing Health Care and Health Related Fields.
